Assessed Valuations & Tax Rates

The assessed valuation in the city, which represents the total value of all property in the city limits, has increased from $2.2 billion in 2004 to $4.7 billion in 2014.

Georgetown Economy and Population Growing

Residential growth continues to be healthy in Georgetown with 690 new residential permits in city limits in 2013, representing a value of $294.9 million. This is the highest number of residential permits since 2007. The city also added 445 multi-family units in 2013, including apartments and senior living facilities.

The Planning Department estimates that in 2013 (Jan. 1 – Dec. 31), the city’s population increased from 50,445 to 52,351. Since the 2010 census, the city’s population has grown 10.4 percent. Including the extraterritorial jurisdiction, which extends up to 3.5 miles beyond city limits, the January 1, 2014 population estimate is 76,010.

Housing values also have increased, with the average home in Georgetown valued at $190,802 on January 1, 2013, compared to $185,915 on January 1, 2012.

Lakeway Drive Bridge Opens

The new Lakeway Drive Bridge opened to traffic in February as officials with the City of Georgetown joined the Texas Department of Transportation to mark the completion of a greatly improved east-west link in the city. The new bridge has dedicated left-turn lanes, wide shoulders, and sidewalks. Funding for the $10.25 million bridge included federal and state sources and $2.5 million from the Georgetown Transportation Enhancement Corporation via the 0.5 percent 4B sales tax in Georgetown. “This project is a great example of collaboration by a number of agencies and we are excited to see this new bridge become a reality,” said Mayor George Garver at the opening event.

Georgetown continues to have one of the lowest property tax rates among cities in the Central Texas region.

'Southwestern' on Water Tower

Georgetown Utility Systems recently completed a rehabilitation of the water tower on James Street near Southwestern University. The City partnered with Southwestern to have the SU logo and the word "Southwestern" painted on the water tower. The new lettering serves as a proud statement that Georgetown is a college town and home to the oldest chartered university in the state. A grant to Southwestern funded the new lettering.

Author James Magnuson May 8

The Friends of the Georgetown Library's Hill Country Author Series will feature writer James Magnuson on Thursday, May 8 at 3 p.m. at the library.

Tickets for the event are $13 in advance and $15 at the door, and may be purchased starting March 15 at the Second Hand Prose bookstore on the second floor of the library or by contacting Ricki McMillian at (512) 818-8074. The library is at 402 W. Eighth Street.
