Water conservation plays a key role in keeping our treated water capacity readily available in summer months. Georgetown Water Utility customers remain in one-day-per-week Stage 2 irrigation restrictions.

Other things to know about watering:

- Restrictions apply to all water customers, including commercial and residential. No one is exempted from these restrictions.
- Low-output watering methods, such as handheld watering and using a watering can/bucket, are still allowed any day of the week.
- There is no irrigation allowed between 7 a.m.-7 p.m. any day.
- Drip irrigation is allowed on your irrigation day within the allotted 12-hour time frame of midnight-7 a.m. and 7 p.m.-midnight.
- Don't forget, no irrigation is allowed on Mondays. This gives our system a chance to recover after the busy weekend.
